COMMENTARY

EXTREME VOLATILITY WITH UNCERTAIN OUTCOMES

April was effectively a story of two halves. Initially, global investors across all asset classes faced intense volatility in response to the Trump Administration's tariff announcements. The markets were rocked by erratic tariff headlines, reframing in long established global trade policies, and a constant stream of tweets from U.S. President Trump. However, a subsequent Executive Order instituting a temporary 90-day pause in tariff implementation led to a strong cross sector market recovery in the latter half of the month.

SUSTAINABLE INCOME AMIDST SIGNIFICANT TURBULENCE

As of May 2025, GCI marks its seventh anniversary since its IPO in May 2018. Over this period, we have navigated a series of substantial challenges, each seemingly designed to test the resilience of the GCI investment portfolio. GCI's Net Tangible Asset Value has withstood a range of market disruptions, including rapid interest rate hikes to curb inflation, concerns over mortgage affordability, the global pandemic (with nearly 8% of Australian borrowers opting for COVID-19 relief[1]), Russia's invasion of Ukraine, U.S. bank failures, the unprecedented bailout of Credit Suisse, and, most recently, the Trump Administration's tariffs. Additionally, we faced the challenges posed by wildfires and frequent flooding—highlighting the critical importance of data-driven decision-making and diversification in income investing.

Throughout this volatility, a consistent theme has emerged: the opportunity for investors equipped with the right data to identify investments positioned to thrive under these unique conditions. Gryphon's investment strategy places a strong emphasis on data, with monthly loan-level data providing essential insights that validate our assumptions regarding the future performance of underlying transactions.

The closed-end structure of the GCI portfolio is another key advantage. It enables the Gryphon investment committee to align its strategy with other Gryphon funds, investing for the long term without the pressure to liquidate assets in a dislocated market to meet unitholder redemption requests. This structural flexibility has played a significant role in Gryphon's ability to consistently exceed the GCI Target Return of RBA Cash Rate + 3.50% per annum.

UPDATE ON INVESTMENT OF GCI OFFER PROCEEDS

The recent Entitlement and Shortfall Offer, which raised over A$209 million, closed just prior to the Trump Administration's tariff announcement. As outlined in the marketing for the capital raise, Gryphon indicated that the full deployment of these funds could take up to three months, largely dependent on prevailing market conditions. While the Australian structured finance markets were not immune to the volatility seen in April—particularly with the new issue market pausing until late in the month and private warehouse transactions taking longer due to temporary shifts in focus from senior banks and issuers—we are confident in the pace of deployment. The deployment of the offer proceeds remains on track, and we are well-positioned to capitalize on opportunities as they arise.
